

AWM Enterprises Inc. moves to ammo plant

BY TRACI BONNEY
AWM Enterprises Inc., a steel plate fabricator, is migrating south from Maryland to the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant.

AWM Enterprises signed a facility use contract for the ammo plant with Mason Technologies Inc. earlier this week. The company plans to start by occupying 5,000 square feet of the plant's manufacturing facility, but has an option for 45,000 square feet more, according to M11 plant manager Ray Scott.

Scott said estimates given to him have the company starting with a staff of 15 to 20, then expanding to possibly as many as 200 employees by mid-1993. "The management may be in as early as next week, but I think production will begin closer to July," Scott said.

"We're really thrilled about this contract with AWM. We think it's just the beginning, and hope to see several more companies move into the facility in the coming months and years."

The Army's head official at the plant, Lt. Col. Harry Sawyer, commented, "This is the first of what I hope will be several companies to come in

County school board plans for Monday budget hearing

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Hancock County School Board members set a workshop meeting Monday to review and prepare next year's budget.

A public hearing on the 1993 fiscal year budget is scheduled for tomorrow at 5 p.m. in the Hancock High School library.

Board members stated hopes that public attendance would be high, to increase awareness of how school tax dollars are spent.

The board rejected a proposal from Hancock High School (HHS) architects Tompkins, Hansen, Fields and Muzzi of Jackson for expenditure of an additional $22,000 for gutters and down spouts.

Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois stated the architectural firm should be held responsible for these additions, adding if they were necessary for proper roof drainage, they should have been included in the original design.

The board placed on hold a request by parents of students living in the northern part of the county, to release school taxes collected within that area to the Picayune School District, since their children attend school there.

Should the board release the tax money, tuition would no longer be charged to those Hancock County students attending school in Picayune.

Bourgeois suggested a dollar

Camp Rainbow

Waveland youngster anticipates fourth season at 'special camp'

BY JANET MCQUEEN
Carrie Roche's bright blue eyes twinkle with excitement at the mention of summer camp. Without hesitation, she names horseback riding as her favorite activity.

She looks forward to seeing friends she has met during the last three years. Friends who share a common bond—cancer.

Camp Rainbow is sponsored annually by the American Cancer Society for pediatric patients ages 6-18. It is free to all Mississippi children who qualify, and is funded by contributions to the state ACS organization.

Carrie, who is presently in complete remission from the leukemia which invaded her small body, first attended the camp in 1989 with the encouragement of her physicians at Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

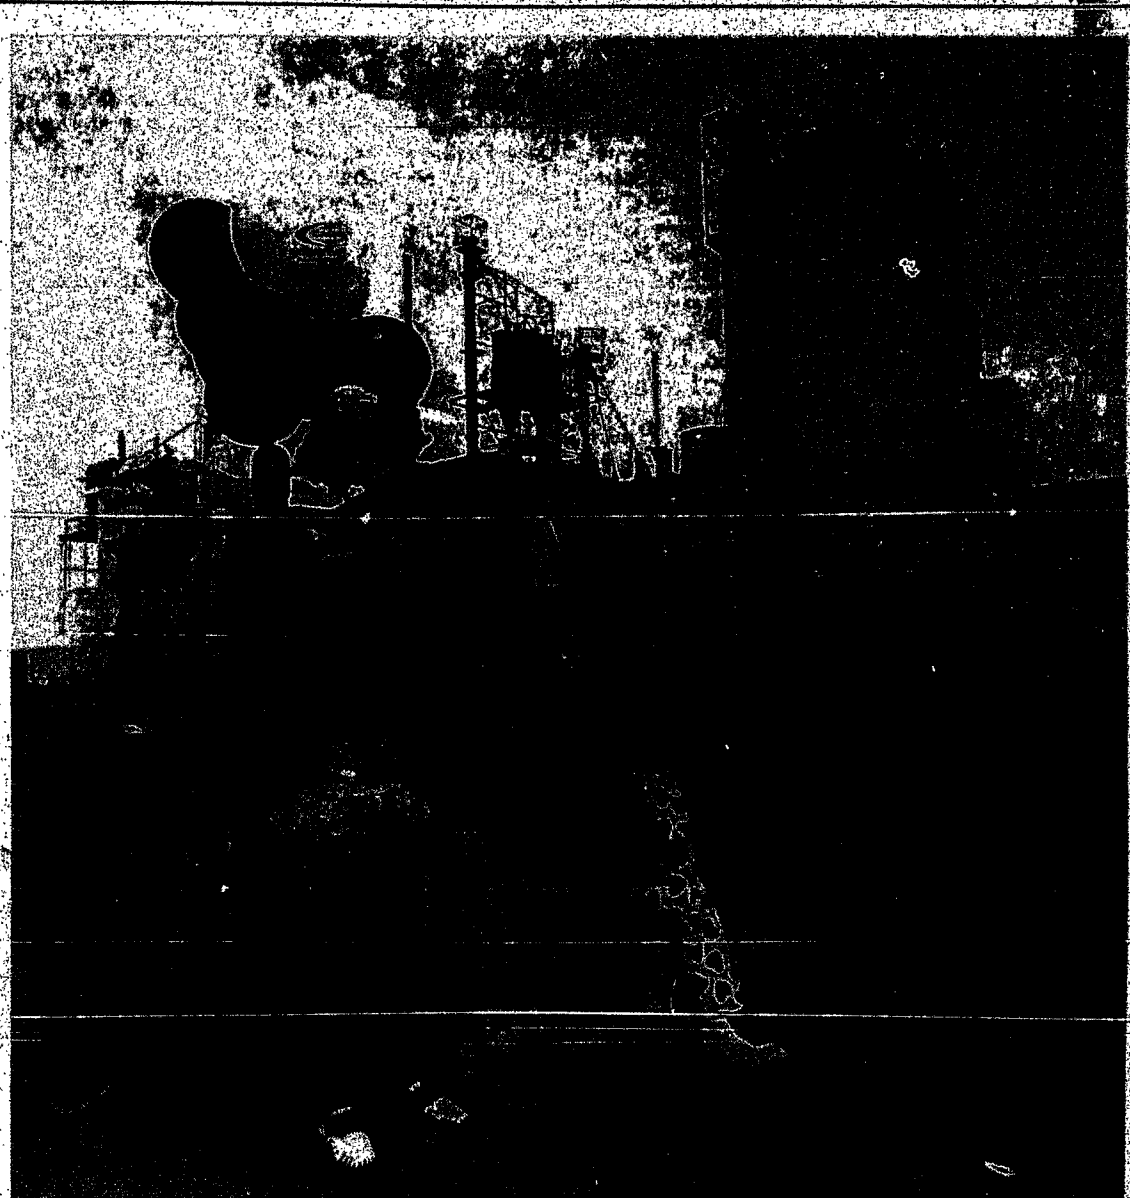

With medication in tow, the six-year-old embarked on a four-day journey away from her parents with their mixed blessings.

"They took wonderful care of her. The campers are never unsupervised," said mother Janet Roche. "That first year it was so hard to let go; you want to protect them all the time."

"I would encourage other parents to take advantage of this camp, or another outside of Mobile, Camp Rap-A-Hope, which is also free to Mississippi

More are involved in cleanup

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
The Hancock Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee's efforts to become Litter Free by '93 is getting strong county support.

For example, several Caesar/Necaise Road residents are beautifying their yards, mail boxes and driveway entrances, and Scenic Trails Inc. recently collected 30 large bags of litter while cleaning the first mile of Wolf Creek Rd. from Hwy. 53.

Don Famularo, Hancock County maintenance shop foreman, is busy making prototype trash containers, which will be functional, low cost, attractive and easy to maintain.

Many county residents have adopted their streets and roads as a project for litter control.

To adopt a street or road in the county, call Linne Swilley at 255-3367; Diamondhead, Mary McDonnell, 255-1556; or Bay Waveland, Naomi Martin, 467-2537.

If you see someone littering, remember the Hotline Numbers: county, 255-6246; Bay St. Louis, 255-6234.

If you wish, you need not give your name. Just give the location, tag number, type of vehicle, type of litter, time of day and date, said Carol Vegas, beautification anti-litter committee coordinator.

The sheriff or chief of police will send a letter to the offender.

State conference to focus on mail-in voter registration

BY TRACI BONNEY
Were you aware that mail-in voter registration begins July 1?

If not, the third annual Voter Awareness Conference June 20 is designed to find ways to remedy that.

The Secretary of State's Office will host the conference at Jackson State University. The conference will focus on the 1991 state law allowing mail-in registration and on increasing voter participation.

An opening session will be followed by workshops and a luncheon, at which Secretary of State Dick Molpus will be the featured speaker. Workshop leaders will include election specialists Jerry Henderson from Alabama, Emmett Fremoux from Washington D.C., and others.

Bay St. Louis municipal clerk Kay Johnson will attend the conference. She said the Secretary of State's office is encouraging residents of each county to attend.

State: Register in person to vote in Aug. primaries

BY TRACI BONNEY

Although mail-in voter registration begins July 1, those who wish to vote in August need to sign up in person if they are not already registered, according to the Secretary of State's Office.

Constance Slaughter-Harvey, assistant secretary of state for the Elections Division, said the mail-in registration method requires 60 days to process applications.

"Even if you register by mail on July 1, there just won't be enough time to have you on the poll books by the August 4 or August 25 primaries."

However, for those who are not voting in the primaries, mail-in registration is an option. The law allowing it was passed by the 1991 State Legislature after the Secretary of State's Office promoted the concept for 11 years. Mississippi is the 26th state in the nation to offer mail-in registration.

Secretary of State Dick Molpus said he expects the system to be especially useful to those who are homebound, disabled or who work in factories and have difficulty getting to the county courthouse to register during normal business hours.

"They'd like to see at least 10 people from every county, but we want to encourage as many to go as want to," she said. Those interested should call Johnson at 467-9092.

Qualifying state candidates listed

The following is a list of the candidates who have qualified in local districts for the upcoming State Legislature elections:

SENATE, DISTRICT 46: Democrats — Scottie R. Cuevas of Pass Christian; Republicans — James "Ken" Overstreet and Bill Johnson, both of Bay St. Louis; Independent — Jerry Ladner of Waveland.

HOUSE, DISTRICT 93: Democrats — Harry L. Frieron Jr. of Kiln, Howard L. Ladner of Poplarville, Roger Joe Ladner of Standard community, Joe B. Rouse of Gulfport and Larry B. Smith of Poplarville;

Republicans — James Roy Klumb of Gulfport and H. Hester Plauche of Bay St. Louis; Independent — Hilda L. Bourg of Bay St. Louis.

DISTRICT 122: Democrats — J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis and Patrick Toomey of Waveland.

June 5 was the qualifying deadline for candidates. Primary elections will be held August 3; runoffs are set for August 25. The general election will be November 3, to coincide with the presidential and congressional elections.

This will be the second consecutive year for state elections, after lawmakers ran in their existing districts last fall when a proposed redistricting plan was rejected as discriminatory. The Justice Department approved the new House and Senate plans earlier this year.

The House plan moved some of District 122's precincts into a new district, District 93. Precincts in District 93 include Kiln East and West, Diamondhead, Fenton, Dedeaux, Catahoula, John C. Stennis (three), Leetown, Flat Top, Crane Creek and Standard.

Senate District 46 includes all of Hancock County. Winners in the November general elections will serve in the State Legislature until 1995.

Amtrak puts Coast run on hold

Amtrak officials announced Thursday that plans to run passenger trains across the Gulf Coast will be delayed from the expected October start until April 4.

The Sunset Limited, which provides service between Los Angeles and New Orleans three times a week, is to be extended to a Los Angeles-Miami run. Bay St. Louis is one of the three Coast stops; Biloxi and Pascagoula are the other two.

Amtrak spokesman Howard Robertson said the company is delaying the start of the Los Angeles-Miami run to make extensive track and signal improvements required to allow higher speeds. Robertson said the work should take about nine months.

He added that the train's top speed will be 79 miles an hour.

The Los Angeles-Miami run will take about 58 hours to cross eight states. A trip from Biloxi to New Orleans will take about two hours, Robertson said, while a journey from Biloxi to L. Angeles will take 41 hours.

Track and signal work will be done by CSX Transportation Co., which owns the tracks.

Bay St. Louis municipal clerk Kay Johnson said the delay won't adversely affect the city's plans. She explained that when the delay was announced, the city was almost finished with plans to meet Amtrak's train-stop specifications.

"We would have been ready by October, but this will give us more time."

She added that the city is in negotiation with CSX to purchase the old depot.

From Echo Staff Reports

KIDNAPPING/RAPE

Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Matt Karl reported the arrest of a Piquette man Thursday for the kidnapping and rape of a female acquaintance.

Karl stated Donald Maurice Myers, 31, was arrested early Thursday morning near the north gates of Stennis Space Center by Deputies Alan James and Travis Foreman following the report to NASA security guards of a rape.

"The woman involved," he explained, "said she accepted a ride with Myers around 3 a.m. in order to go to the store to purchase cigarettes."

"According to the victim, Myers took her to an area off Texas Flat Road and raped her there."

"She escaped from the car and made her way to the Stennis gates where guards Barry Hoda and Harvey Price assisted the victim and notified the sheriff's department."

"Upon arrival by deputies, the area of the alleged attack was searched and Myers was found asleep in his car."

Karl added the victim was taken to Hancock Medical Center where she was treated and released.

Myers was placed in the Hancock County Justice Facility where he remains under a $50,000 bond.

BOAT THEFT

Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Nathan Hoda reported the arrests Thursday of two Pass Christian men in connection with the alleged theft of a boat from Lake Catherine in Louisiana.

Hoda said Ronald Mayeux of Slidell was going to his camp at Lake Catherine Thursday afternoon when he reportedly saw two men towing his boat east. Mayeux told authorities he turned around and gave chase, stopping only long enough to make a 911 call in Pearlport about 2:20 p.m.

Deputy Nathan "Corky" Hoda was dispatched in response to the call, and stopped the suspects on Hwy. 90 in the Pearlport area. According to the report, Mayeux also stopped, identified the boat as his and charged the two men with stealing it.

Investigator Hoda said the suspects — Jeffrey Negrotto, 21, and Robert Moran, 20, both of Pass Christian — were taken to the Hancock County jail and held while the New Orleans Police Department was contacted. Hoda added that NOPD officers asked the county to hold Negrotto and Moran, who later signed waivers of extradition.

Injured man given almost $1 million

Alabama resident James Gregory Gunter was recently awarded almost $1 million for injuries sustained at the Waveland Resort Inn bar when a Russian Roulette flared up and burned a quarter of his body.

According to testimony, Gunter was burned on the face, arms and chest in June 1989 by the flaming drink, which exploded onto him when a bartender tried to add 151 proof rum.

Clyde Dewayne Scott, a friend of Gunter who was standing next to him, was also burned over about five percent of his body, according to Mobile burn center doctors.

Scott has since died from unrelated causes, but the federal jury in the U.S. District Court in Biloxi awarded his estate $247,500. Gunter was awarded $900,000.

The jury's decision came May 30, after four days of testimony.

Kerr remains on Most Wanted list

A Staff Report
A new edition of Mississippi's 10 Most Wanted poster continues to show a photo and information on Jeffery D. Kerr of Pearlport.

Kerr, 49, is wanted by Hancock County authorities for escape and importation of drugs. He should be considered armed and dangerous.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said, "He escaped from the old jail about six years ago. He's the only one we haven't gotten back."

An in-state, toll-free telephone number is available 24 hours a day if you have information that may lead to Kerr's arrest. The call is confidential. The number in Mississippi is 1-800-552-8477.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I guess I have about seen it all now after viewing a flounder with two tops. I have caught on a fishing line and have stuck thousands of flounders during my lifetime and this was the first one for me to see as such.

The area which is normally the bottom on the flounder and is usually white, was the same color as the top with the exception of a small area by its head.

It had extra fins on its side and bottom; only there were no extra eyes.

Woody and Faye Allison stuck the flounder Tuesday night and they did not notice the unusual fish until Woody started to clean the catch.

They contacted the Bureau of Marine Resources office and were told no one there had ever seen such a flounder. BMR obtained the fish for their collection and will probably study it.

Something is new every day.

There will be a blood drawing Wednesday at Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139, Green Meadow Road, Bay St. Louis.

The drawing will be from 1 to 7 p.m., according to John Rutherford, longtime Hancock County chairman.

Going through Echoes of years gone by to research "Archives," I read where a second blood drawing was held in Hancock County in 1942, and has been ever since, so this is not a new venture for our citizens.

A goal of 100 units has been set, and it will be met only with the help of many volunteers.

Persons who are physically able and 17 years or older are invited to come in, Rutherford requests.

One never knows when the need for blood may arise.

Wasn't it great for the 1355th to receive a Unit Citation Award from the U.S. Army?

The National Guard 1355th Supply and Service Company of Bay St. Louis and Ocean Springs was recognized for outstanding service during the Persian Gulf War.

We as Hancock Countians have to be very proud of the fine job our men and women did in the Persian Gulf protecting our freedom and the freedom of the world.

It makes one really proud to be an American, and we should always remember the sacrifices our military give for the freedoms we enjoy.

Congratulations to each and every member of the National Guard 1355th Supply and Service Company, you deserve all the recognition you receive.

The Hancock Chamber of Commerce's Chamber Pot will be Monday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Waveland Resort Inn.

Waveland Resort is the sponsor and spaghetti and meatballs will be the Chamber Pot special for this month.

Admission will be a business card and $4 for the spaghetti and meatball lunch.

I am glad they are getting off from the red beans & rice menu for a change. Of course, I do enjoy good red beans & rice.

I hope to see you at the Chamber Pot on Monday.

Boring under Nicholson St.

Workers from Dora Boring Company, subcontractors to GM&R Construction Company, are shown boring a pipeline under Nicholson Avenue during recent FmHA water and sewer extension project work to that area. According to Waveland Utilities Department Supervisor Mike Barnes, the five-ton boring machine must be lifted and placed upon a stretch of railroad track, into a minimum 40'x20'x9' hole. Then a 14" steel pipe casing is drilled through the ground and under the roadbed. "Not all roads can be bored," Barnes stated. "First it depends if the road right of way is wide enough to accommodate the 40-foot of length needed for the hole in which to place the machine, and then, it depends on what existing lines and cables are blocking the intended area." FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Trent Lott

Putting teeth back into the process

I am sponsoring a bill in the Senate called the Budget Process Reform Act of 1992. One hundred and twenty-three members of the House, including Representative Chris Cox of California who is sponsoring the bill on the House side, and 17 of my Senate colleagues have joined with me to introduce this measure.

The reform is designed to overhaul the budget process and put some teeth back into it, largely by controlling spending.

The truth of the matter is that the budget process is broken, and in my opinion has never worked. The budget process, as it stands now, does little more than encourage deficit growth and spending.

The reform uses the following steps to replace the broken down Congressional budget process in a simplistic and efficient manner:

1) Budget First, Spending Second — No authorization or appropriations bill may be considered until the budget is in place;

2) A One-Page, 19-Function Budget Resolution — Shall be a joint, rather than concurrent, resolution to bring the President into the process before the last minute;

3) Meet Budget Act Guidelines — The Rules Committee in the House will have no jurisdiction to waive the Budget Act deadlines or spending limits. Instead, a two-thirds vote would be required;

4) Enhanced Rescission — Presidential line-item veto for over-budget portion of spending;

5) Pay-As-You-Go Supplementals — Any increased spending must be offset;

6) No Baseline Budgeting — No more "current services" baselines in President's or Congressional budgets — hard number must be used.

The American people are sick and tired of fiscal irresponsibility in Washington, and it is high time we get the federal budget deficit under control. Deficits do matter, and don't be fooled that they don't.

Congress has to start acting fiscally responsible and stop such absolutely insane practices as requiring 51 votes to raise taxes and 60 votes to lower taxes. What in the world was the Senate thinking when this passed? I'm not sure, but I can tell you that I voted against it.

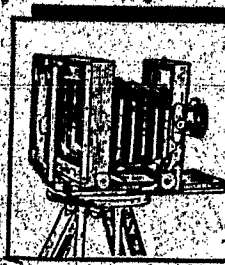

Budget process reform is long overdue. We now have the largest budget deficit in history, wasteful government spending and uncontrolled entitlement expenditures. This is what this bill will fix and is why I will work to have it passed.

Interim director Nourse outlines Gaming Commission's authority

Special to the Echo
"The most valuable asset a gaming operation, or for that matter a gaming state, can have is its good reputation," said Mississippi Gaming Commission interim executive director Bruce Nourse at a recent meeting.

"That good reputation must be based on public confidence, and trust that licensed gaming is conducted honestly, fairly, and free from criminal elements.

The Gaming Commission is committed to conducting thorough investigations before licensure and to monitoring strict compliance so the public confidence and trust is maintained to ensure a successful gaming industry in Mississippi.

"No matter where we have to go... our agents will travel to every jurisdiction an applicant (for a gaming license) has lived or worked over the last 10 years... checking the courts, law enforcement, public records and all pertinent agencies in those jurisdictions to develop an accurate profile."

Nourse's comments were made at the Great Riverboat Gaming Get Together last week at the Biloxi Grande Resort Hotel.

Approximately 200 persons attending heard speakers on a variety of subjects concerning dockside, casino and riverboat gaming in Mississippi and Louisiana, and such riverboat host states as Iowa and Illinois.

Nourse said his state patterned its method of individual investigations after those performed in Nevada. The new director spent six years as an investigator for the Nevada Gaming Commission and the state's gaming control board.

With the individual applicant for license paying the freight, Nourse figured some of the investigations could top $40,000 with an average cost ranging in at around $15,000 to $20,000.

"No state funds are used to conduct the investigations of the individuals applying for findings of suitability," he explained.

Nourse revealed the high

priority applied to other commission concerns. These include the presence and availability of on-site parking, emergency vehicle access, access road capacities, vessel designs and compliance to code, and detailed review of infrastructure.

"Personal investigations are conducted on all officers, directors, shareholders and key employees down to the casino manager. We are required to investigate each shareholder no matter how small the ownership interest," Nourse said.

To provide insight into the additional scope of his office's activities prior to granting license, he said corporate applicants are supplied with a 35-item laundry list, items of major concern to the commission.

All must receive prompt and complete attention and exhibit a state of full compliance prior to the licensee's doors being opened to the public. Included are the provision of complete financial disclosures and projections, feasibility studies, schedules, marketing strategies, and the like.

He said his office provides a 17-part punch list to manufacturers and distributors seeking license to do business in the state.

Personal investigation is required to investigate all lessors if their monthly payments are tied to a percentage of gaming revenues. "These investigations consist of a background and financial review of these applicants over a 10-year period," the interim executive director explained.

After outlining procedures following in granting a license, Nourse said state involvement with a licensee's operation is an ongoing and unending relationship.

"Any gaming license issued by the commission is deemed to be a revocable privilege and the holder has no vested rights in the license," he emphasized.

He further pointed out the commission has the absolute authority to deny, limit, suspend, condition, restrict, or revoke any license or finding of suitability it issued.

out here. The future is beginning to look better for the plant all the time, I think."

AWM vice president Clark Tyler said the small, minority-owned manufacturing firm has signed its first contract for production at the plant, with Grove Worldwide.

"Grove Worldwide is a major manufacturer of hydraulic cranes. We'll be making outrigger beams — the legs that go out and stabilize the crane — for a particular model Grove makes, a 25-ton rough terrain crane.

"It's a small contract, but if we do the job well it can lead to bigger contracts. That's the way Grove operates."

Tyler said the company also has bid for a Navy contract to build modular barges. When in operation, the barge is lowered, section by section, into the water, then connected and used to ferry armored vehicles, fuel and logistic equipment ashore from a ship.

If the company wins the Navy contract, Tyler added, AWM may also move some of its operations to a waterside site in the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

He praised Sen. Trent Lott, Rep. Gene Taylor and consultant Carroll Gordon for their efforts in negotiating the contract between AWM and MTI.

Tyler said he is planning to move to Mississippi as part of the company's management staff. The 57-year-old Harvard graduate is married and has three grown sons.

Supervisors move on disposal plan

BY TRACI BONNEY

The board of supervisors authorized a letter of intent Monday to join with Pearl River and Stone counties in regional waste disposal and minimization plans.

The resolution approving the letter resulted from a meeting last week with officials from the three counties, Bay St. Louis's and Waveland's mayors, and consultants Lloyd Compton and Bill Johnson.

The board also authorized advertisement for a public hearing on the subject, set for 7 p.m. June 23 at the Hancock County Civic Center.

Compton is developing the plans in response to state and federal mandates requiring the counties to outline how they intend to dispose of waste for the next 20 years and reduce waste by 25 percent by 1995.

DITCH DILEMMA

Road superintendent Sam Cuevas asked for board approval of a letter of agreement between the county and Firetower Road resident Shirley Shipman.

Shipman had appealed to the board several times for a solution to a drainage problem that was causing a ditch on her property to erode and turr into a ravine, but was not willing to grant the county an easement to go onto her property.

Cuevas said board attorney Gerald Gex drew up a letter of agreement saying that Shipman and her husband would allow the county access to the property to correct the problem, and would not hold the county liable for damages. The Shipmans signed it, and at Cuevas' request, the board accepted it.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Oh, the merry, merry, marrying month of June! Long known as the month of weddings (although there are brides and grooms in every season, of course) June is the occasion for parties of all sorts.

June graduates come also in for their share of attention and parties (although some colleges held their commencement ceremonies in May. I trekked to South Carolina for No. 2 grandson Brian David McGuire's graduation the first Sunday in May, for instance) the pace quickens, as do the parties.

High school graduates are being feted, also. And sixth and eighth graders as well—kindergarten, also? At any rate, it's a time for partying at all age levels, even if it's only celebrating summertime! You may be sure that the teachers are celebrating summer, with its bright and lazy days and its lingering light before the dark closes in. For me, it's a time for relaxing on the porch, as we used to do before air conditioning shut us all up inside! The air-conditioning may be going full-blast inside the house, but late afternoon and early evening often find me relaxing in the swing on the front porch, enjoying a frosty cold drink (if the gnats and mosquitoes aren't too pesky!) before dinner with a few friends.

Of course, most of these occasions call for some sort of "nibbles" or more substantial offerings also, often impromptu. We or frozen hearts of artichokes on the pantry shelf or in freezer or fridge.

An easily made, but elegant offering is:

HOT ARTICHOKE DIP

1 can artichoke hearts, drained and finely chopped
1 cup mayonnaise
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Mix together well, place in a shallow baking dish or casserole, and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour. Serve with crisp crackers or melba rounds for all need a few "old reliables" on hand or easily put together. Year-round favorites at my house are varied artichoke dishes, from stuffed fresh artichokes to marinated artichoke hearts in jars, as well as canned dipping. That's all there is to it, but it's delicious, with an elusive crab-met-like taste.

If I'm even lazier, I might mix up a cold artichoke dip, with a can of artichoke hearts (drained and chopped) and a cup of mayonnaise, then a package of dry Italian salad dressing mix stirred in or whatever herbs and seasonings my hand reaches first on the pantry shelf and serve it like that. But the baked version is well worth the bit of extra effort!

And, when I'm less languid and lazy, I mix up another artichoke favorite:

ARTICHOKE CHEESE SQUARES

2 (6-oz.) jars marinated artichoke hearts, undrained
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
4 eggs, beaten
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup fine, dry bread crumbs

2 Tbsp. minced fresh parsley
1/8 tsp. dried oregano
1/8 tsp. pepper
1/8 tsp. hot pepper sauce
Drain one jar of the artichoke hearts, reserving the marinade. Drain the other jar, discarding the marinade or reserving it for another use. Chop the artichoke hearts, and set aside.

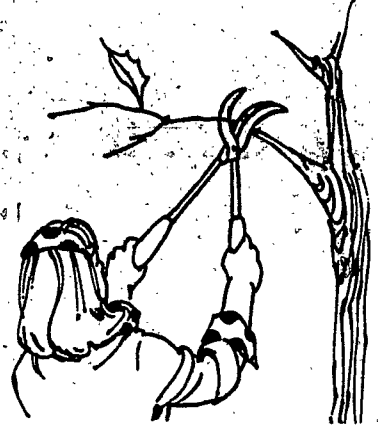

Pour the reserved marinade into a skillet, add the onion and garlic and cook over medium heat until tender. Cool slightly, then combine the onion mixture, artichoke hearts and remaining ingredients, mixing well. Spoon into lightly greased shallow dish, and bake at 325 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes or until set. Let stand for 10 minutes before serving. Cut into 1-inch squares. Serve warm or cool. (5 dozen squares). (Copyright, 1992, Katharine D. M. Caire)

Pruning needs continue throughout the summer

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

For many gardeners, the time for pruning has passed and for others pruning is a fairly regular garden chore. If you have a privet hedge, you'll probably do tip pruning in the form in Mississippi

Gardens

of shearing every few weeks. Keeping a hedge looking neat is a time consuming practice even when you have power clippers.

While we normally think of pruning as mainly an early spring activity, there are needs for pruning that will go on throughout the summer.

If you did some rejuvenation pruning this spring on large, overgrown shrubs by drastic cutting, they should be sending up vigorous new growth by now. Before these succulent, new shoots get too tall, pinch out the ends to cause them to branch.

If the new shoots are already tall, cut them back to a more desirable length and force them to form branches. This practice will help keep the shrub compact and hopefully delay the need for additional severe pruning for several years.

Fruit and ornamental trees pruned this spring before growth started may be sending up strong, vertical shoots, called water sprouts, at the sites of branch removal. Before these shoots get large, prune them out so you won't have to remove them next spring.

Newly planted fruit trees that were pruned at planting time would probably benefit from the selective removal of unnecessary shoots that sprouted along the main trunk below the level of the fruiting branches. Unnecessary shoots could be those that are poorly spaced around the main trunk and are crowding future fruiting limbs. There is no reason to let a lot of plant growing energy go to shoots that will have to be removed.

Another area where pruning is an on-going practice is in plants that are cut and directed to grow flat called espaliers. Some shrubs, trees and vines can be trained to grow very close against a wall or fence, so they have only height and width and very little depth. Usually a geometric pattern is selected for the branches and they are trained to the pattern by tying them to a supporting framework. Special nails can be hammered into brick mortar or wooden walls and the branches tied to them.

Developing an attractive espalier is time consuming because it depends on the growth rate of the plant and because of the need for frequent tying and pruning. Once established the need for pruning continues if the plant is to remain attractive.

Dwarf plants are a very poor choice for espaliers because of their slow growth rate and long establishment time. Fast growing plants will require almost constant trimming to keep them looking neat and attractive.

For additional information on espalier patterns and plants to use, ask for a copy of extension publication 456, Espalier Shrubs and Trees, at your county extension office.

Training shrubs into specific shapes such as balls, pyramids, boxes or animal shapes is known as topiary. Topiary requires frequent but light pruning or shearing. It isn't nearly as easy as it appeared in the movie "Edward Scissorhands." Shrubs with small leaves and a tendency to branch heavily are best for topiary.

Wire forms are available at some nurseries and garden centers to assist you in establishing the initial shape.

The shoots of garden mums need to be pinched out to cause branching, and this is also the case for the new shoots or primo canes of blackberries.

When the primo canes reach 36 to 40 inches in height, pinch out the tips so the fruiting wood or branches will develop. For the next few weeks, you can pinch out the tips on the tender new growth of azaleas to cause more branching. This results in a more compact plant that will have more flowers next spring.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON - A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "high-tech" food tablet would help ease world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula, which has since been improved with other natural colloids, has been a windfall for some overweight people.

A Daytona Beach, Florida woman, fighting a weight battle for 12 years, used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds, but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear."

In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in three weeks on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

Paintin' faces

Summertime creativity focus of free activities at three libraries

"Spout About Books," the Hancock County Library System's summer reading program, will begin this week with face painting by Cherie Schadler and Susan Daigre.

Susan Daigre is owner of the Bookends book store in Bay St. Louis. She has been active in promoting children's activities and encouraging them to learn the joy of reading.

The program will begin Tuesday, June 9 at 1:30 p.m. at the Kiln Library, Wednesday, June 10, at 10 a.m. at the City-County Library, and Thursday, June 11, at 10 a.m. at the Waveland Library.

This year's program features two segments to the program—the reading incentive segment and the summer activities segment. The reading incentive segment is open to all children and young adults from preschool to eighth grade. Children who have not yet learned to read may participate by having a parent read to them.

To register, visit any Hancock County Library branch, sign up and then visit a branch at least six times and check out at least six books during the program, which ends July 8. To validate each visit to the library, stickers will be placed on your reading record.

A certificate and goodie bag will be presented each participant who completes the program. Merit stars will be awarded for every five books read beyond the basic reading goal of six. Awards will be distributed the week of July 13.

Free drawings will also be held periodically throughout the program, and participants are urged to register for those when visiting their library branch.

Further information on the program may be obtained by contacting Sandra Ladner, Kiln Library, 255-1724, Karen Peoples, Waveland Library, 467-9240, or Myra Haynes, City-County Library, 467-5282.

Cherie Schadler

Schadler, a native of New Orleans who moved to Pass Christian five years ago, is a singer/songwriter who produced a Nashville television show, Nashville Revue, and toured across the country with the show.

She studied fine arts at the University of New Orleans, was listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students in 1976 and 1977, and received the Award of Merit in the 1990 Billboard song contest.

In the fall of 1991, she was offered by Jan Carr of Reach TV in New Orleans the opportunity to produce a Bayou Town children's puppet show. It is a puppet set that consists of portable puppet houses, moss draped trees and a cast of colorful puppet characters that include an array of nationalities and bayou "critters."

Cajun dance lessons offered

A Cajun dance demonstration and lessons will be offered Friday, June 12 from 7-8 p.m. at West Side Community Center, US-90, Gulfport.

A country/western dance will follow at 8 p.m. with the "Midnight Ramblers" band playing until midnight. Admission is $5 per person.

The lessons are sponsored by the Boots 'n' Bows Country-Western Dance Club and the Gulfport Parks and Recreation Department.

First Baptist Church welcomes new pastor

First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis welcomed its new pastor, Dr. Ed J. Deuschle (Dish-lee), May 31. Deuschle recently served as pastor of First Baptist Church in Pontotoc.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pa., September 24, 1946, he moved with his family to Tupelo, which he considers his hometown, when he was seven. He graduated from Tupelo High School in 1964 and attended the University of Mississippi on a baseball scholarship.

A member of the Army ROTC, he graduated from Ole Miss in 1969 with a bachelor of science in physical education, then received a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Infantry.

He was in the military from 1969 to 1971, serving in California, Panama and Vietnam. Injured after 6½ months in combat, he spent seven months in the hospital at Fort Polk, La., and was discharged with a medical retirement with a permanent leg disability. While in Vietnam, he was decorated with the Air Medal and given a recommendation for the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in combat.

Dr. Ed J. Deuschle

guished Service Cross for heroism in combat.

After being discharged, Deuschle was employed in Tupelo for USF&G Insurance. That summer, he was called into full-time Christian ministry and enrolled in seminary. He earned a master of divinity from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1974 and a doctor of ministry in 1983 from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

He has pastored Baptist churches in Marietta, Okla., Sturgis, Fulton and Pontotoc, and has been active in several denominational associations and committees, including the state Baptist convention.

He is married to the former Rita Frasier of Jackson. They have four children: Eddie, 22; Jenny, 18; Holly, 11; and Laura Beth, 6.

Deuschle succeeds Dr. Nathan Barber, who was called to serve Immanuel Baptist Church in Hattiesburg after 18 years of ministry in Bay St. Louis. Deuschle said, "I am excited about the ministry opportunities that are before me as I assume the responsibilities of serving in my new position. My family and I hope to establish new friendships throughout the community, and desire to make a significant contribution toward the spiritual enrichment and betterment of life in the Bay St. Louis area."

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

We are all well acquainted with the function of the placenta in a pregnant woman's womb. The mother shares everything without exception with her developing baby. Whatever she eats, drinks, breathes or feels, the baby does too.

Yes, that term "shares" definitely includes all kinds of drug use and, in this case, smoking. Why, then, do pregnant women have to be told by the surgeon general that their smoking introduces their babies to the habit of smoking before they even see the light of day?

Considering the many and bitter complaints which so many have about government interference and control, it is simply mystifying to see how careless many people tend to be about threats to their health until they are warned by the surgeon general or some other arm of the government.

Part of the answer lies in plain old human unawareness, ignorance, disinterest, ennui and lack of healthy curiosity, not to mention absence of concern for the helpless unborn.

But the rest of the answer is the kicker. It is related to an occasional sight which greets visitors in cancer clinics. Once in a long while, one is assailed by the spectacle of a patient who has had cancerous growth removed from the throat, yet is smoking with a cigarette thrust into the tracheotomy.

Only a step less sickening is the case of a friend who had half his tongue removed several years ago due to cancer, but has not missed a beat in his smoking habit. Although he is intelligent, well educated and often challenged about his situation, he keeps on puffing through his cancerous mouth.

A decade ago, I watched a young aunt smoke out her closing months while under siege from lung cancer. Our appeals to the basic facts of medicine, our reasonings that these did not have to be her last months of life, our urgings that she dump the cigarettes and anchor herself in faith, were all in vain.

All of us hear of cases where emphysema sufferers cannot find the strength to tear themselves away from smoking, in spite of their oft-agonizing struggle just to get air. In a case told to me, a hospital patient smoked under the sheet in order to elude the gaze of his nurses.

So what are we to conclude? Above all, that the strength of an addiction can be so overwhelming that it casts aside all rational thinking, all concern about oneself and others, and the fearful realities of life-threatening diseases.

In other words, an addiction can be so powerful that the addict feels compelled to satisfy its pangs rather than avoid impending death or rather than spare the life of another which is under immediate threat because of the addiction.

The most frightening aspect of a pregnant woman who smokes, drinks or does other drugs is that a mother is the last bastion of support for life, especially the life of her own offspring. If an addiction can deter a mother from preserving life, its influence on others must be truly deadly.

Since many pregnant women drink, smoke, do other drugs, eat some of the unhealthiest things, or otherwise abuse their bodies, there is a ringing message here for mothers-to-be.

Mothers, of course, are the

No smoking in this womb

prototype and paradigm for the rest of us. It is clear, then, that we are being challenged with the same pro-life message through faith in Jesus Christ.

FAITH CONDUCTS A YEAR 'ROUND SCHOOL FOR CHILDREN

In some school districts, the problem of overcrowded classrooms has been alleviated by a year 'round rotation system, in which some children will spend the summer, or most of it, in school. However, when they do have their vacation, they should not be allowed to forget such things as manners, discipline, and above all, faith. The latter is especially important at this time, because regardless of what the schools do, the Sunday schools are closed for the summer; and this makes it easy for the children to forget what they learned during the rest of the year. Faith is a year 'round curriculum, so whether the children are at home or in school, they should be taken to the House of Worship; where they will be reminded of it.

"The quick look data looks good." These were the findings of Mississippi Test Facility personnel after scanning tapes of performance obtained during last Friday's full duration acceptance firing of the S-11 Saturn V-Apollo second phase moon shot booster rocket at Mississippi Test Facility. If the data proves successful the component will be shipped out on Feb. 5 via river barge to Michoud. There it will be off-loaded and put on board a sea going barge for passage to Cape Kennedy. The component is scheduled to become part of the first Saturn V vehicle whose launch date is anticipated to be in the second quarter of this year.
